WEEKLY WEBCAST

Sunday 9:00 AM PST

We are a Bible centered group of believers who desire to grow in the full knowledge of Jesus Christ without compromise to His Word.

Jesus called his disciples to be salt and light. Salt is a preservative but it is also something that adds savor and enjoyment to our daily food. Light is a symbol of truth; it is comforting, penetrating, guiding and exposes darkness. We seek to preserve biblical truth and shed the glorious light of the Gospel in a world that is consumed by darkness.

NOTES FROM THE FRONT LINE

By Laura Getting

It's been ten months since I made a trip from Alaska to California to meet with Pastor John and see his ministry in person. We found EAEC on the internet through Omegaman Radio. My husband and I came for what we hoped would be a miraculous deliverance and God has indeed set us free from our demonic strongholds! We were ready to repent and turn away from the carnal world, a key point to being set free. We are thanking and praising God every day that He is longsuffering (as He promises) and patiently waited for me for over 30 years.

Right after our deliverance, we both noticed a dramatic difference in the connection we had with our Heavenly Father through the Holy Spirit. We were thirsty for the Word of God and the Lord had us both interested in helping others find freedom. We also experienced the sensitivity of this spiritual connection. We decided we would watch a television show, searched for something appropriate and finally settled on a show about an entrepreneur that went overseas to start a company. The first episode was fine, however, by the third episode there was murder, prostitution, adultery, lying, cheating, and drugs. We immediately felt the "disconnect" from the Holy Spirit and God showed us that it is never okay to look upon such things. I did not like feeling distanced from God because I had just found my way back to Him! This feeling of disconnection was tangible and we felt the darkness that we had allowed into our home.

Since that time we have been seeing miracles and the mighty move of God's hand as we prepared to move and join this ministry. We sold our house in a tough housing market in two hours for the full asking price and the new owner bought every piece of furniture in the house as well. It was the easiest move I have ever made in my life. As we traveled the Alaska Highway to California, we were so blessed and literally felt the prayers of everyone as we spent 9 days on the road. We pulled into one campground and other travelers were amazed that we weren't all muddy. They were spending about twenty dollars to wash their cars and campers. One gentleman walked up in amazement and asked "How did you not get dirty?" I told him we were covered in prayer. "Wow, you are lucky!" was his response. I answered back, "I don't need luck because I have Jesus!"

God is still active and performing healings and deliverance; He is still pouring out blessings! I would like more contact with our cyber members. I keep hearing people say, "I don't want to write or call because you are so busy." That is #32 in Satan's playbook, trying to keep us from building faith and reaching out for prayer. If most people accept this lie, many won't write or call in for help.

I have witnessed a woman's leg grow an inch before my eyes and her back is now straight. I have seen numerous deliverances from foul, unclean and wicked spirits. A recent deliverance of a lady had such a heavy spiritual pressure on everyone present but it lifted after the last curse was broken. This heaviness is something I can't properly describe but would be likened to a heavy weight placed on your shoulders. Afterwards, it felt like I was floating; God was present and touched us all. Then her heart was healed! A demon had a hold on her precious blood pump and it left in Jesus name. We are getting rid of our glasses around here and needing new prescriptions because eyes are being healed!

I am learning to watch the words that come out of my mouth. In the deliverance process there is a powerful healing that comes when we acknowledge and pray over curses that have been spoken in their lives. Included in this are curses people have accepted and said concerning themselves.

Don't give the enemy extra ammunition! I am asking you to pray about your words. They can cut like knives but they should be encouraging and cause a healing. Look at what our Heavenly Father says about words:

"Pleasant words are as an honeycomb, sweet to the soul, and health to the bones." (Proverbs 16:24)

We just can't go slinging around idle words. There will be consequences.

"Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be. Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter?" (James 3:10-11)

"Death and life are in the power of the tongue: and they that love it shall eat the fruit thereof." (Proverbs 18:21)

What kind of fruit do you want to eat?

When Cain murdered his brother Abel, he used a crude weapon that could have been a stone, club or a knife. Since that first murder, Satan and his fallen angels have consistently introduced new weapons for mankind to wage war or to murder individuals.

Looking back in history, we see the development of weaponry with swords, daggers, axes, spears, clubs, catapults, chariots and bows and arrows. The discovery of black powder brought about more sophisticated projectile weapons such as the rifle, pistol and shotgun. Sailing ships were eventually equipped with cannons, which made it possible for mankind to fight on the oceans, lakes and rivers. Ships became more efficient with the steam engine; they could be built larger, carry more weapons and were not dependent upon the wind anymore.

With the discovery of smokeless gunpowder came the modern rifles, pistols, machine guns, mortars and artillery of different kinds, including rockets. The combustion engine gave the weapon producers a new platform as they did not have to rely upon horses to pull artillery pieces anymore and could make self-propelled cannons, tanks and vehicles with machine guns mounted on them.

The goal of the military industrial complex was to develop advanced weapons that could kill mankind faster and more efficiently.

During World War I, the armament industry on both sides of conflict decided that the guns and cannons could not kill people fast enough, so they introduced chemical warfare and soldiers were suddenly dying in massive numbers as mustard gas swept over the battlefields.

With the development of airplanes, the military industrial complex mounted machine guns and bomb racks on the airplanes and made the killing more efficient from the air.

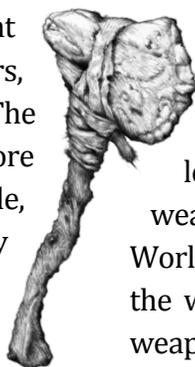

After World War I, there was such an outcry from people around the world that the political leaders met and agreed to outlaw chemical weaponry. Chemical weapons were not used in World War II, but the military industrial complex in all the warring nations increased the efficiency of their weapons with the addition of aircraft carriers, submarines, heavy four engine bombers and fast fighter aircraft.

Incendiary bombs were used by the Allies as well as the Germans to create firestorms in cities that resulted in the deaths of tens of thousands of civilians.

The most infamous firebombing was of the German city Dresden just a few weeks before the war ended. Hundreds of thousands of refugees were killed in that firestorm.

The incendiary bombs were nothing compared to the two atomic bombs which were dropped on the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945. It took hundreds of heavy four engine bombers to create a firestorm with incendiary bombs while a single bomber dropped an atomic bomb that killed more than half a million civilians.

The wars in Korea (1950-1953), Vietnam (1945-1975), the invasion of Iraq (1990-1991); the second invasion of Iraq (2003-2011) and the war in Afghanistan (2001-present) were fought with conventional, chemical and biological weapons.

THE COLD WAR (1945 - 1991)

After World War II ended in 1945, the Soviet Union turned on England, France and the United States and the relations between these countries cooled considerably to the point that there was a state of political and military tension. It was termed as "cold" because there was no direct large scale fighting between the two sides. Both sides realized that a nuclear attack would be mutually destructive and they also realized that a conventional war would be a disaster that neither side could win.

The cold war was fought using Special Forces, spies and covert operations by aircraft and submarines. Thousands of service men were killed on both sides, but no one complained, since each side was equally guilty of waging covert war.

Chemical weapons could not be used, since they were outlawed. Political leaders in the East and West began to think about a weapon that could be unleashed without leaving a trace.

BIOLOGICAL WARFARE

The evil mindset of using disease as a weapon has existed for centuries. Because technology was in a primitive stage, the different warlords of kings and emperors used rodents to spread disease to the enemy nations. The British Army used small pox as a weapon against the Native American Indians by handing out free blankets that had been used by people with small pox. Since the disease was non-existent in North America, the Indians had no immunity and entire Indian tribes were wiped out without a shot being fired.

Biologists were later able to develop cultures of bacteria and viruses and observe them through the microscope.

Evil Soviet leaders like Vladimir Lenin and Joseph Stalin, searched for ways to kill large groups of people as effectively as possible and saw bio-weapons as a golden opportunity to kill many people and the source would be untraceable.

BIO-WEAPONS DEVELOPMENT IN THE USSR

Joseph Stalin ordered a biological war laboratory to be built at the Leningrad Military Academy even though the Soviet Union had signed the 1925 Geneva Convention which outlawed the use of chemical and biological weapons during war. The loophole in this treaty was that there was no prohibition against using them on civilians during peacetime. The Soviet military command ordered the development of typhus into a biological weapon in 1928. Typhus is a bacterial disease which spreads naturally through lice and fleas. As a biological weapon agent, it would be dispersed via aerosol through an artillery shell or sprayed from an airplane.

Once the typhus concoction had been developed, it was tested on inmates in the Solovki prison camp on the arctic island of Solovetsky. A gulag prisoner in the Soviet Union had no value and the death of an inmate was considered acceptable since he would be replaced with a new prisoner.

Stalin wanted to guarantee that if a deadly agent was developed in one of his laboratories, there was also a vaccine to protect him and his troops. The task to develop a vaccine was given to a laboratory near Moscow, which became known as the Red Army's Scientific Research Institute of Microbiology in 1933. E.N. Pavlovskii (1884-1965) was initially the head of this laboratory, and when Nikita Khrushchev became the ruling dictator over the Soviet Union in 1958, he began to dismantle Stalin's personal network of power in the Soviet Union. Pavlovskii published a medical article detailing the horrors of the biological warfare that Stalin had unleashed on millions of people living in the Ukraine and Central Asian Soviet Republics.¹

Pavlovskii revealed that during Stalin's purges in the 1920's to 1940, biological research had developed 253 subspecies of Ixodes ticks, which carried tularemia, brucellosis, relapsing fever, encephalitis and other plagues.

Due to the German attack on the Soviet Union, all biological and chemical warfare laboratories and production centers were moved to the city of Kirov, which was located west of the Ural mountains and out of range for the German war machine.

When Adolf Hitler ordered the attack on the Soviet Union on June 22, 1941, the Soviet army could not mount an adequate defense as the German panzer divisions sliced deep into their territory.

As the Germans began to close in on Stalingrad in 1942, Stalin ordered a biological attack on the German war machine and the germ agent used was Tularemia, which causes fever, loss of appetite and septicemia (serious infections of lung, abdomen and urinary tracts). Once it has been unleashed, it only takes 3-5 days before the people exposed to the biological agent succumb to the disease if it is left untreated. The result was that thousands of German soldiers died and the offensive was temporarily halted.

The German intelligence service did not have advance knowledge of this escalated warfare and it is highly probable that the Red Army used biological weapons to weaken the German army divisions and eventually defeat them later on.

After the war was over in 1946, the Soviets built a biological weapons production center in the city of Sverdlovsk, also located in the vicinity of the Ural Mountains.²

The tempo of increased biological warfare continued in the Soviet Union and a biological weapons factory of smallpox was built in the city of Zagorsk, close to Moscow in 1947.

² The city's name was changed back in 1991 to its original name of Yekaterinburg.

Pressure was building from several nations to curtail the research and stockpiling of biological weapons, as a result, the United States, Great Britain, Soviet Union and 19 other nations signed the Biological Weapons Convention to outlaw these weapons in 1972. In 2014 there are 170 nations who have signed this treaty.

Despite the treaty, the Soviet Union continued to build facilities that researched and produced biological weapons. It is estimated by western intelligence services that there were 52 such facilities in 1973 and some 50,000 people worked on the secret biological warfare program. It is further estimated that the yearly production of weaponized smallpox, rabies, typhus, anthrax and other diseases was around 100 tons.

Just like in the United States, the biological programs in the Soviet Union were spread out to make it difficult to pinpoint their research and production. Here are some of the Soviet agencies that were involved:

- ❖ Ministry of Defense
- ❖ Ministry of Agriculture
- ❖ Ministry of Health
- ❖ Academy of Sciences
- ❖ The secret police, previously known as the KGB but has since been renamed the FSB.

All the different institutions involved in biological warfare were under a directorate (umbrella) called the "Biopreparat," which was headed by a government department of disease control and incorporated in the Biopreparat to mislead Western political leaders.

During the 1980's, the Soviet Ministry of Agriculture developed various types of foot-and-mouth disease and rinderpest on cattle, which were then weaponized.³ Those of us who were adults during the last century remember the terrible outbreak of this disease which affected cows in England and the slaughter of hundreds of infected animals to stop the spread of it. It cost the British farmers millions of dollars in lost income, as other nations refused to import meat from England for a number of years.

Also produced were the African swine fever which targeted pork production and Psittacosis disease which is geared for killing poultry.⁴

A year before the Soviet Union dissolved in 1991, a production line to manufacture smallpox on an industrial scale was built in the city of Koltsovo located in Southwestern Siberia. This was carried out at the large biological research center in Koltsovo and was called the State Research Center of Virology and Biotechnology, also known as the Vector Institute. The facility was a very large with multiple buildings, storage facilities and security fences. This important compound is guarded by a full regiment of the Russian Army, consisting of some 2,500 officers and soldiers.

In the early part of 1990, the Soviet Union even exported weaponized smallpox to Saddam Hussein in Iraq in order to shore up his defensive capacities.

Once the Soviet Union ceased to exist in 1991 and Boris Yeltsin became president of the Russian Federation, he admitted that during the era of the Soviet Union that there had been an offensive biological weapon program. Yeltsin deliberately omitted that the program had not been dismantled even though the governments of Russia, Great Britain and the United States had signed an agreement in 1992 to end all such programs. Twenty-two years later, the world is faced with a belligerent Russia led by Vladimir Putin, who is determined to restore the territories lost when the Soviet Union dissolved. Putin has ordered a massive armament build up, which also includes an aggressive offensive biological weapon program.

COLONEL KANATZHAN ALBEKOV

Colonel Kanatzhan Albekov of the Soviet army was the First Deputy Director of Biopreparat from 1988-1992. He resigned from the agency when he realized that the Russian Federation would continue the same path as the old Soviet Union with the production of biological weapons. He is not an ethnic Russian, but a Kazakh, born in what today is Kazakhstan. He did not hold Russian citizenship and used this situation to flee Russia and defect to the United States with his family in 1992 and changed his name to Ken Alibek.

Alibek was a leading scientist with knowledge of the Soviet/Russian biological offensive warfare program and was received with open arms by the United States government just like they did with the German scientists in 1945-50 under "Operation Paperclip." He was being debriefed by CIA agents and American biological warfare experts upon his arrival in the U.S. He revealed just how massive the Soviet biological offensive warfare program had been, including details of the different facilities and their production capacity. Alibek also testified at several congressional hearings, but for some reason the media chose not to report on this matter and the American people were kept in the dark as to the lethality of the Soviet/Russian biological weapons. A nuclear bomb destroys infrastructure and organic matter but a biological weapon only eradicates the people of a nation. The only thing necessary is a decontaminant.

Once Alibek and his family arrived in the United States and became American citizens, he went to work at the George Mason University (GMU) as a professor of Medical Microbiology. GMU is the largest research university in the state of Virginia with 34,000 students in 2013. Alibek became the driving force to develop an innovative biodefense graduate education program at the university and he also spearheaded the upgrading of GMU's biosafety to level three (BSL-3) and was able to secure a $40 million grant from the Federal and state governments to construct a new facility for this purpose.

Alibek had been disturbed when he worked as a scientist in the Soviet Union with biological offensive weapons. Over time it became clear to him that the United States government also wanted to go beyond bio-defense and start to research and produce its own biological weapons. As a result, he resigned from GMU in 2006 and is working with AFG Biosolutions in Gaithersburg, Maryland. He is the President, Chief Scientific Officer and Chief Executive officer of this corporation.

It is obvious that Alibek is still a main player in the bio-engineering field. He started MaxWellBio (MWB) in 2006, a pharmaceutical company based in Washington D.C. This corporation has several sub-corporations and affiliates in the United States and the Ukraine.

According to Alibek, his goal is to establish a new large scale high-tech pharmaceutical laboratory in the Ukraine, filled with the latest cutting edge equipment and capable of producing prescription drugs. Construction began for the large sprawling MWB campus in the city of Boryspil, close to Kiev, in April of 2007. The facilities were completed in 2008. It is interesting to note that the international airport for Kiev is located in Boryspil and one of the biggest airports in Eastern Europe as more than six million passengers passed through it in 2008. It is also a connecting hub for flights to Eastern Europe, as well as to former Soviet republics and the Middle East.

QUESTIONS I WOULD LIKE TO ASK

The rapid and growing success of Ken Alibek leaves me with several questions that beg answers:

1. How can a former Soviet army colonel accumulate the necessary finances to build a state of the art pharmaceutical campus in Ukraine? Working as a professor at George Mason University would have given him a salary of around $500,000 per year, but that does not translate into the 100 million dollars necessary to build such a facility. There is a fierce competition among the huge pharmaceutical corporations, and if they had known that Alibek was going to build a huge facility in Ukraine and produce cheap generic drugs, why didn't they lobby to block any private financing?

2. Could it be that the CIA wanted a modern offensive biological weapon production center outside the United States in order to keep Congress from finding out what is really going on? After all, the CIA rented prisons for its rendition program after 9/11 in nations like Poland, Ukraine, Romania, Thailand, etc., where so-called "terrorists" were taken and mercilessly tortured. How convenient to have a state-of-the-art facility in the Ukraine to manufacture biological weapons.
3. Alibek was the top Soviet scientist when it comes to offensive biological weapons. Any director for an intelligence service would spend a lot of money to hire a man with these credentials. We know the Soviets were more advanced in offensive biological warfare since they used their own population to test their bio-weapons. It was done on a much smaller scale in the U.S. Did Ken Alibek pretend to get upset at GMU about the weaponization of biological agents as a cover story to mislead anyone from digging further?

JAPAN

The Japanese government under its Emperor was a sadistic evil government which linked Japan with Nazi Germany in 1936, when Japanese ambassador Kintomo Mushakoji and German foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop signed an anti-communist pact between the two nations in Berlin.

The pact included a military cooperation and joint development of future weapons. Since both Japan and Germany had conducted extensive research into biological weapons, the two nations started to share research and material with one another. German U-boats would be used to transport the different biological pathogens that had been developed in the different laboratories.

The Japanese army invaded Manchuria on September 19, 1931. Emperor Hirohito and his government falsely decreed that they had liberated Manchuria from China and installed a puppet regime of local Manchurians who were controlled by the local Japanese army commander.

Emperor Hirohito and the Japanese government decided to build a secret state-of-the-art chemical and biological warfare testing center in the province of Pingfang. The project was started in 1934 and the complex was completed in 1939.

The Japanese government had originally named the facility, "Epidemic Prevention and Water Purification Department of the Kwantung Army." The name of the complex was changed to Unit 731 in 1941. The prison camps were filled with prisoners of war from Russia, China, South East Asia, America and from captured British soldiers.

The complex can best be described like a Nazi concentration camp encompassing a cluster of buildings, which made up the laboratory complex, surrounded by prison camps. It was built in an uninhabited area and the local population was prohibited from entering the area. The official explanation was that the Japanese government had built a large lumber mill and declared it a military zone for security reasons.

The Japanese government allocated the necessary funds to build this facility which included centrifuges for human testing, high pressure chambers for testing how much pressure a human could survive on board a submarine and low pressure chambers for the pilots of the Japanese air force. Walk-in freezers were built to test what exposure to extreme cold would do to a human being. Since a large numbers of prisoners would be killed on a daily basis, huge incinerators were built that could quickly cremate the dead bodies.

The different laboratories and surgical buildings were equipped with the latest equipment available on the world market. Housing for doctors, nurses and other medical staff were constructed, which also included living accommodations for the secret police, prison guards and the military units protecting the complex. It had its own airport with a number of pilots and aircraft from the Japanese air force to carry out the experiments of the biological weapon systems.

In addition, there was a large maintenance staff to keep the facilities running, plus modern kitchens to feed the personnel and their food scraps were given to the prisoners.

Unit 731 was linked with the Japanese medical educational system, and during its nine years of existence, Japanese medical students from different universities and other medical schools in Japan were required to spend time at Unit 731 as part of their medical training. Thus the entire medical student cadre who went through its medical education from 1936 to 1945 was exposed to the inhumane treatment of prisoners. After the war ended in 1945, just about every doctor who had graduated during this time period became part of the Japanese health system. It was not until the early 1980's that the last of the doctors from this time of horror finally retired from the Japanese health system. This meant that all professors at the different universities and medical schools in Japan had been at Unit 731 and were allowed to teach the next generation of doctors in Japan up through the 1980's.

When there was a need for more prisoners to be experimented upon, the Kempeitai (Japanese military police unit) would simply find and abduct people. They routinely supplied 600 victims per year to the camp. Thousands of the prisoners died at the hands of the Japanese doctors and their medical staff and those that survived were scarred for life.

RESEARCH DONE BY UNIT 731

The commander for Unit 731 was Japanese General Shirō Ishii, chief medical officer of the Japanese Army. Ishii had spent two years in the West and came back convinced that the United States, England and Germany were developing biological and chemical warfare programs and Japan therefore needed its own programs to meet the challenge.

Tension had been building between the United States and Japan since the early 1930's. General Douglas MacArthur, who was the Field Marshal of the Philippine Army since the foundation of the Commonwealth of the Philippines in 1935, had said the United States could send Christian missionaries to Japan and lead them to Christ or combat forces would eventually be needed.

The biological and chemical warfare research centers in Manchuria did not come into being by some mid-level Japanese military officer. It was Emperor Hirohito who issued an imperial decree after being briefed on the need for this type of research in 1936.

VIVISECTION

Vivisection is surgery conducted for experimental purposes on a living organism, to view living internal structure. This horrible and painful practice can be done to a human or an animal. General Ishii gave the orders to perform vivisections on men and women who had been brought to his prison camps. The prisoners were first infected with different diseases used in biological warfare. In order to get the best result on the testing of nerves and muscles controlled by the brain, he ordered the procedure to be done without anesthesia, which meant excruciating pain for the person enduring the surgery.

At Unit 731 a person would be seated in a chair. His legs, arms and torso would be tied to the chair, so that he was to be immobile. Before he was strapped to the chair, his hair was shaved off and he was stripped of his clothing so that the doctor and his staff could observe any part of the body they wanted to study. A special tray fastened to the legs was then positioned around his neck and snapped in place. Fasteners from the tray were then positioned around his head, so that he would be unable to move the head.

His mouth would be taped shut so that he could not scream. The procedure would start once the person had been put in this "vise grip." First a saw was used to saw through the skull and remove it from the head and expose the brain. Then the doctor would start to probe and cut different parts of the brain to measure what effect it had on the body. By the time the "surgery" was over, the patient had died under the cruelest circumstances ever devised by a diabolic doctor and his staff. Other times, victims were chained to an operating table.

The vivisections were not limited to men and women but were also conducted on children and infants.

In 2007, Japanese Army Surgeon, Ken Yuasa, made a public confession to the war crimes he had committed. He had not been at Unit 731 but had worked at Japanese field hospitals in occupied Chinese territory. He stated that he was afraid during his first vivisection but the second one was easier. By the time he was doing his third, he had no problems in doing the procedure. Thousands of Chinese men and women were killed by vivisection at Unit 731 and in the many Japanese field hospitals located all over China.

GERM WARFARE

General Ishii and his staff had worked diligently to develop offensive biological warfare agents of different contagious diseases like the bubonic plague, cholera, and anthrax. To test the delivery system, prisoners were tied to stakes and germ releasing bombs were set off to test its efficiency. Chemical weapons were also tested in the same manner.

There was a high rate of displaced Chinese civilians due to the advance of the Japanese Army. Fleas that had been infected with different diseases were used to infect clothing and other supplies and subsequently air dropped over the refugees. The hapless Chinese people were infected and in turn spread the disease to others, resulting in the deaths of hundreds of thousands civilians.

The coastal city of Ningpo was targeted in 1940 as low flying Japanese aircraft flew over the city spraying it with infected bubonic plague fleas. In 1941, as the battle raged around the city of Changde in the Hunan province, Japanese aircraft again sprayed the area with infected fleas. More than 400,000 Chinese died of the different plagues. Just like Stalin had done in the Soviet Union, tularemia was spread to civilian Chinese people.

The research done at Unit 731 sounds like a chapter out of Dante's hell with suffering so great that it is hard to describe, let alone understand it, because the average human being doesn't possess a criminal mind. Prisoners were told that they were going to be vaccinated but were injected instead with venereal diseases. Some male and female prisoners were infected with syphilis, others with gonorrhea and left untreated to see how long they would survive. Female prisoners were constantly raped by the Japanese guards.

Legs and arms were amputated in order to study blood loss. Sometimes amputated limbs were reattached to the opposite side of the body to see if the body would accept the re-attached limb. Some prisoners' limbs were frozen and then amputated. Other prisoners had parts of their bodies frozen and thawed. This was done to study what happened to untreated gangrene and rotting.

There was no end to the testing General Ishii ordered. He had a virtually unlimited supply of people at his disposal and there was no end to the horrific pain and suffering inflicted on the prisoners while they were alive.

Ishii wanted to know what would happen if the stomach was removed and the esophagus were connected directly to the intestines. Removal of organs from living patients was common and people only had part of their brain, lungs liver, kidneys, etc., removed and then were observed to see how fast they would die.

NO END TO THE HORRORS

There were some prisoners who were denied food and only received water. Others were denied food and water while others were only given water. This testing was done to see how long it would take for a person to die under these different circumstances.

Prisoners were also placed in high-pressure chambers to simulate high altitudes for Japanese air force pilots to discover the maximum altitude a pilot could survive if he had to abandon his aircraft. Other prisoners were subjected to tests to see how much pressure a submarine sailor could take before he would die. Prisoners in the high-pressure chamber never survived the testing and died under excruciating pain.

There was also testing conducted to determine how long a human being could live in extreme hot or cold temperatures. They were dressed in different clothing to determine suitable protection for Japanese soldiers, sailors and air crews in order to protect them from fires or from exposure to low temperatures. The testing took place in heated or refrigerated enclosures. The prisoners of these tests did not survive either.

Another experiment conducted was to find out the survival rate for a Japanese pilot if his aircraft had been hit and began to spin. A prisoner was put in a large centrifuge and the rate of spinning would increase until the prisoner died.

Other prisoners were injected with animal blood to see if it was a suitable replacement that could be used in surgery for wounded Japanese soldiers. General Ishii wanted to find out just how much X-ray radiation a technician could be exposed to before he died. Prisoners were exposed to radiation until they died in order to determine a safe rate for hospital staff.

Chemical weapon agents were tested on prisoners in enclosed chambers with windows. The staff would then watch the result to see how long it would take for the prisoner to die.

General Ishii wanted to know if sea water could be used instead of a saline solution; prisoners were injected with sea water, which led to their deaths.

Prisoners that survived testing were either incinerated in a furnace, or if there was no incinerator available, they were buried alive. There was no concern for the pain and suffering of the victims before death came to them.

There was ongoing testing where prisoners were infected with bubonic plague, cholera, smallpox, botulism, anthrax and a variety of other contagious diseases. Needless to say, all the prisoners involved in this testing died excruciating deaths as the diseases ravaged their bodies.

The technical staff at Unit 731 designed special bomb shells of porcelain that were filled with different disease agents and used by Japanese pilots to bomb areas held by the Chinese forces trying to hold back the Japanese army.

THE END OF WORLD WAR II

Japan officially surrendered to the United States on September 2, 1945, after atomic bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Both the Soviet Union and the United States were aware of the Japanese biological warfare section known as "Unit 731" and it became a race to capture the Japanese doctors and scientists.

Stalin and his military commanders knew that Japan was beaten when the second atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki on August 7, 1945. Nevertheless, Stalin ordered more than one million of his soldiers to invade Manchuria on August 8th and take as much territory as possible before the Chinese/American forces could liberate it.

The Japanese government, urged by Emperor Hirohito secretly surrendered to the United States on August 10th and the fighting was finally over.

Prior to surrender, orders were sent to destroy the complex of Unit 731, kill all the prisoners and the Japanese researchers were ordered to commit suicide.

General Ishii and most of his staff had shown no mercy on the prisoners they had violently killed through their experiments, but they refused to prematurely end their own lives. They had seen the United States leapfrogging from one island to another in the Pacific; it was clear since the early part of 1945 that it was only a matter of time before Germany was defeated and they knew that Japan would fall next.

They were well aware of the fact that they would be viewed as war criminals in the eyes of the other nations. Something had to be offered to the United States in order to save their lives and receive amnesty.

The German missile detachment under Wernher von Braun and German intelligence General Reinhard Gehlen had been preparing since June of 1944 to save their lives by offering the Americans their knowledge in return for amnesty.

General Ishii and his staff boxed up all the medical data from 1936 to 1945, including all research and test results of their bio-warfare experience. Ishii knew that the Soviets were going to turn on the United States as soon as the war was over and that both sides had extensive bio-warfare research programs. General Ishii preferred to deal with the Americans, so before Soviet troops reached the area of Unit 731, Ishii and thousands of the staff fled south to surrender to the American Chinese forces.

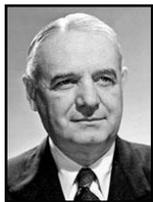

Twelve low ranking staff members were captured by Soviet troops as they raced south from Siberia. They were put on trial for war crimes in December of 1949 in the city of Khabarovsk. It was obvious that they had been interrogated harshly during their four years of captivity to reveal all they knew about Unit 731 so the Soviets could incorporate the Japanese bio-warfare research into their program.

Any person familiar with World War II knows that the Nazi's convicted of war crimes at Nuremberg received harsh sentences with the death penalty in many cases. Even though the 12 staff members of Unit 731 confessed to bio-warfare testing on civilians, they only received a 25 year prison sentence. Seven years later they were released and sent back to Japan. It is obvious that a secret deal had been worked out.

AMERICAN SECRET DEALINGS

The American intelligence service during World War II was known as the Office of Strategic Service (OSS) and its head was Major General William "Wild Bill" Donovan. At one point there were 13,000 people working for the OSS. Donovan knew the Soviets would be the next enemy as soon as the war was over and he had been working on a plan since 1943 to extract as many German intelligence officers, scientists and weapon specialists as possible. His spy network in China and Manchuria had informed him of the bio-warfare project in Manchuria and he made it clear to General Douglas MacArthur that he wanted to capture as many Japanese researchers of Unit 731 as possible.

The Chinese government under the leadership of Chiang-Kai-Shek, the president of China, wanted to try the Japanese of Unit 731 as war criminals and execute them, but the American military and intelligence services brushed him off and when General Ishii and his staff managed to reach the American troops coming north.

Since General Ishii and his staff had experimented on thousands of Russian POWs, Stalin put in a request to have Ishii and his staff interrogated by NKVD agents. OSS agents intervened and the order was given that Ishii and his staff be sent to Japan and held in an American prison camp.

Dr. Edwin Hill, a microbiologist and the director of the American bio-warfare program at Fort Detrick, along with Dr. Joseph Victor, flew on an American Air Force plane to Japan as soon as Ishii and his staff were in American custody and interviewed 22 of the Japanese bio-warfare researchers. Ishii had brought with him a large number of documents and some of these were taken back to Fort Detrick. As Dr. Hill and his staff went through the documents, they realized that it had been written in such a way that that they needed to be deciphered. Ishii had done this purposely in order to have a bargaining chip to save his own life.

The military leadership of the American bio-warfare program ordered General MacArthur to negotiate with Ishii and his staff in order to get their cooperation in deciphering the documents from Unit 731.

The staff of General MacArthur concluded that in order to obtain this "invaluable information" from nine years of research, it did not matter how horrible the acts had been, it was necessary to secure this information to safeguard a future threat from the Soviet Union.

General MacArthur at this time had been appointed Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers (SCAP) by President Truman and ordered to form a military government of Japan and booted out the Soviets in the process as they tried to occupy a piece of Japan. Even though there were British forces in the occupation force, MacArthur was in reality the sole ruler of Japan until it gained its independence in 1952.

THE DARK SIDE OF GENERAL MACARTHUR

Japan set up military whorehouses in the nations they occupied and the women forced to work as prostitutes were called "comfort women." MacArthur realized that with more than 300,000 American military personnel in Japan, one of the ways to control the men was to set up a system of licensed whorehouses in every location where there was a military base. Japanese families sold their young daughters to the operators of the whorehouses because food was scarce and jobs were hard to obtain. In this way the U.S. Army was no different than the Japanese Army had been in treating the general population.

This whorehouse system operated until January 21, 1946, when MacArthur issued a decree to end the licensed whorehouses and private operators took over. These whorehouses are still well-known to any service men stationed in Japan or on shore leave.

The criminal side of MacArthur came to light with the formation of the International Military Tribunals for the Far East (IMTFE), which convened in Tokyo on April 29, 1946, and lasted until November 24, 1948.

On May 6, 1947, MacArthur wrote a military memo to his superiors at the Pentagon in Washington D.C. that it was possible to gain much information from Ishii and his staff if the files from Unit 731 were classified as "intelligence information." They could effectively be kept secret from any legal prosecution of war criminals and any information about Unit 731 would not be available for the IMTFE. Furthermore, in the final deal offered to Ishii, neither he nor his staff would be charged with war crimes if they fully cooperated. Ishii and his staff accepted the deal in 1948 and it was officially signed by MacArthur.

All the files of Unit 731 were transferred to Fort Detrick in Maryland and deciphered for American bio-warfare research. General Ishii spent some time at Fort Detrick to share with the American researchers his knowledge gained through torture and death.

General Ishii and his staffers were later employed at hospitals and research centers in Japan. They lived out their lives without ever having to pay for their crimes against humanity. Rest assured though, there is a future court, where someone like MacArthur won't be able to save them at the Great White Throne Judgment when Jesus will judge humanity. Not only will they be sent to the Lake of Fire, but they will be given additional torment for the atrocities they committed while they lived on earth.

"And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever.

And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them.

And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works.

And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works.

And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire." (Revelation 20:10-15)

MacArthur committed treason against the United States when he decided to shield Emperor Hirohito and the entire imperial family from being implicated at the war crime trials. This also included a number of other influential Japanese officials. Instead of looking for justice for the Americans who died at Pearl Harbor, the Marines who died on the beaches and the more than 400 American POW's who vanished at Unit 731, MacArthur ordered his military legal staff to work hard to alter documents and make sure that no war criminal was allowed to point a finger at the emperor, his family and the other people MacArthur was protecting.

American soldiers that had been imprisoned in Japanese POW camps were forbidden to share what they had gone through at the hands of the Japanese.

During his years as the ruler of Japan, MacArthur made sure that nothing leaked out to the American media, but 66 years later, top secret documents have been declassified and researchers have been able to find the diabolical truth that was suppressed for so many years.

In 2002, the communist government of China held an International Symposium on the Crimes of Bacteriological Warfare by Japan in World War II. It was symbolically held in the city of Changde, one of the sites of the flea spraying attack. It was estimated that the Unit 731 caused more than 580,000 Chinese deaths in this area. Whatever the numbers, the men and women of Unit 731 have blood on their hands and so does General MacArthur and the military lawyers who shielded their crimes against humanity.

In my next segment we are going to look at the German bio-warfare programs and then examine the American bio-warfare program with the knowledge gained from Unit 731.

“And GOD saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually.

The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence. And God looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.”
(Genesis 6:5, 11-12)

Therefore my people are gone into captivity, because they have no knowledge: and their honourable men are famished, and their multitude dried up with thirst. Therefore hell hath enlarged herself, and opened her mouth without measure: and their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, and he that rejoiceth, shall descend into it. And the mean man shall be brought down, and the mighty man shall be humbled, and the eyes of the lofty shall be humbled...” (Isaiah 5:13-15)

“Woe unto them that draw iniquity with cords of vanity, and sin as it were with a cart rope: That say, Let him make speed, and hasten his work, that we may see it: and let the counsel of the Holy

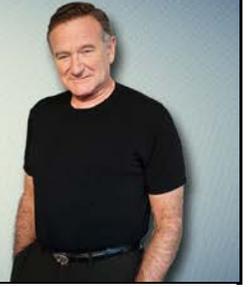

One of Israel draw nigh and come, that we may know it! Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil; that put darkness for light, and light for darkness; that put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter! Woe unto them that are wise in their own eyes, and prudent in their own sight! Woe unto them that are mighty to drink wine, and men of strength to mingle strong drink: Which justify the wicked for reward, and take away the righteousness of the righteous from him! Therefore as the fire devoureth the stubble, and the flame consumeth the chaff, so their root shall be as rottenness, and their blossom shall go up as dust: because they have cast away the law of the LORD of hosts, and despised the word of the Holy One of Israel.” (Isaiah 5:18-24)

“For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness; Because that which may be known of God is manifest in them; for God hath shewed it unto them. For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse: Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened. Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools, And changed the glory of the uncorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and fourfooted beasts, and creeping things. Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonour their own bodies between themselves...” (Romans 1:18-24)

ROBIN WILLIAMS

THE SAD TRUTH THE MEDIA WON'T TELL YOU

Joe Schimmel

Everybody is currently talking about Robin Williams and his tragic suicide. Many are puzzled as to how a man, who made so many people laugh, could be so depressed that he would violently end his life. What people are not learning is the deeper truth about the insidious forces that tormented Robin Williams and drove him to suicide.

Robin Williams acknowledged that he had opened himself up to transformative demonic powers that aided him on stage. Without the aid of such demonic powers, it is likely that you would have never heard of Robin Williams and many other famous celebrities. Williams also recognized that these powers had manifested a very evil influence on stage and that there could be a hefty price to pay for their assistance. Williams told James Kaplan of US Weekly:

“Yeah! Literally, it's like possession - all of a sudden you're in, and because it's in front of a live audience, you just get this energy that just starts going...But there's also that thing - it is possession. In the old days you'd be burned for it...But there is something empowering about it. I mean, it is a place where you are totally - it is Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, where you really can become this other force. Maybe that's why I don't need to play evil characters [in movies], 'cause sometimes onstage you can cross that line and come back. Clubs are a weird kind of petri dish environment. I mean, that's where people can get as dark as they can in comedy - in the name of comedy, be talking about outrageous stuff and somehow come out the other side. I mean, that's one place where you really want to push it”¹

Williams' last statement quoted above answers the question as to why the demonic powers use entertainers. Their goal is to promote evil and darkness and increase mankind's rebellion against God.

Williams went on to say on the heels of that admission:

“The people I've admired - Jonathan [Winters], in his best days, was out. Gone. But the price he paid for it was deep.”²

Sadly, it seems that the price Robin Williams has now paid is just as deep as that of his idol, Jonathan Winters. In fact, in the same US Weekly Interview, James Kaplan says:

“With a gift for mimicry and improvisation that verged on demonic possession, Williams could even approach the artistry of his idol Jonathan Winters—a man whose genius took him, once or twice, over the edge into mental illness. Williams' own version of hell has been extensively chronicled.”³

Like Robin Williams, Jonathan Winters had to contend with the tormenting demonic powers he utilized for fame and fortune. “These voices are always screaming to get out,” Winters told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, further admitting “They follow me around pretty much all day and night.”

At the height of Winter's success, he voluntarily committed himself to a psychiatric hospital for eight months. Winters would later claim that if he were not careful, the authorities would put him back in the “zoo,” an obvious reference to the mental institution. Winters, like Williams, often fell into deep depression and struggled with heavy drinking.

While many only knew Robin Williams to be what they considered a somewhat “family friendly” actor, he was one of the most successful crude stand-up comics who ever lived. It was during his standup where he was most able to tap into what he calls “possession...Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde... that's where people can get as dark as they can in comedy - in the name of comedy.”⁴

It was in Williams’ stand-up where he would go into his manic, stream-of-consciousness rants filled with vulgar language, perverse sexuality and the glorification of illicit drugs and drunkenness. Many people express shock after seeing Williams' stand-up, not knowing his act was so perverse.

Comedians, like many famous musicians, pay the price for their fame by becoming enslaved to the demonic forces that possess and torment them. Jim Morrison, the frontman of America’s most successful band in the 60’s, admitted that he had to drink “to silence the constant voices of the demons.”⁵ The Door's photographer, Frank Lisciandro, stated that,

“Jim drank to quiet the ceaseless clamor of the demons, ghosts and spirits. He drank because there were demons and voices and spirits shouting inside of his head and he found that one of the ways to quell them was with alcohol.”⁶

Brian Wilson, considered the musical genius of the Beach Boys, claimed that he has been harassed by several different demonic spirit entities that so tormented him that he was bed ridden for years. Rolling Stone describes Wilson's possession-like experience in ways that are reminiscent of scenes of Linda Blair from The Exorcist:

“Brian Wilson hears voices. They talk to him. They frighten him, distract him, confuse him...the voices are calling. His eyes roll toward the ceiling; they've gone blank. His brow is furrowed with thick worry lines. He is silent. Gone. He looks up, jerks his head back and forth for a few seconds, as if physically shaking away the voices.”⁷

Former Warner Brother Records President, Larry Waronker, claims to have met at least five different entities possessing Brian Wilson's body.⁸

Ozzy Osborne admitted, “I've got many, many demons that affect me on many, many levels.”⁹ Ozzie further admitted, “I remember sitting through the Exorcist a dozen times, saying to myself, 'Yeah, I can relate to that.’”¹⁰

Most people are blind to this diabolical pattern of celebrities giving themselves over to satanic power for fame and fortune, only to be exploited, used and abused, and then spit out after Satan is done with them.

Heath Ledger’s life ended prematurely not long after he accepted the evil role of The Joker in The Dark Knight. While Ledger’s depression began after starring in the gay promotional film, Brokeback Mountain, after his death, headlines from Australia's Herald Sun like, “Tragic Death: Heath Ledger Battled His Demons” and The Star, stating “If it was personal demons that conspired to destroy Heath Ledger, they were already making their presence felt many years before,” underscored the fact that Ledger was dealing with some dark forces.

Ledger said of The Joker character he would portray in The Dark Knight, “He’s a psychopathic, mass murdering, schizophrenic clown with zero empathy.” However, to properly play the role to his satisfaction, Ledger would open himself up to evil spirits with even less empathy. “Well,” said Jack

Nicholson, who had also played The Joker, “I warned him.”¹¹

Unfortunately, Nicholson’s warning went unheeded and Ledger overcame his fears and ended up even meditating on becoming the evil Joker he would portray:

“I definitely feared it...Although anything that makes me afraid I guess excites me at the same time. I don’t know if I was fearless, but I certainly had to put on a brave face and believe that I have something up my sleeve. Something different...just closing my eyes and meditating on it...it was important to try to find a somewhat iconic voice and laugh. I ended up landing more in the realm of a psychopath — someone with very little to no conscience towards his acts.”¹²

Ledger told the New York Times that he “had trouble sleeping while portraying the Joker,” and that, “Last week I probably slept an average of two hours a night.” Ledger seems to have been so tormented that he told the Times, “I couldn’t stop thinking. My body was exhausted, and my mind was still going.” He went on to state that he took drugs, which would quell the unrest for only an hour.¹³ Sadly, Ledger, died of a drug overdose shortly after the filming of The Dark Knight.

Robin Williams, like Morrison, Winters, Ledger and so many others who resort to drugs or alcohol in their attempt to quell the demonic voices that torment them, fail to realize – until it’s too late – that such drugs only draw one deeper into Satan’s insidious web.

Sadly, Robin Williams must have felt like he was in a no win situation. When he sought sobriety, the demonic voices which he admits he had opened himself up to likely tormented him to no end. When he sought to drown out the clamoring voices with a deluge of alcohol, he ended up poisoning himself and teetered on the throes of death. He had tried “professional help” a number of times, but the arm of the flesh, no matter how noble the intentions, cannot overcome the demonic world.

Robin Williams felt enslaved to the industry and to the very dark powers that brought him fame in the first place. An intimate friend of Williams told the Telegraph that Williams had been working on new projects and dreaded making more films to pay the bills, as they “brought out his demons” and “left him drained and particularly vulnerable to depressive episodes.”¹⁴

While we need to avoid two extremes – the claim that mental illness is always demonic or that all mental illness is simply of a material nature – in Williams’ case, he admitted the danger of plunging into the demonic realm and his concern over its dark consequences, a la Jonathan Winters! The scriptures are clear that we are not at war with flesh and blood but the demonic world (Ephesians 6:12) and that the weapons of our warfare are not fleshly but spiritual (2 Corinthians 10:4).

The truth is that only the Lord Jesus Christ has the power and authority to deliver humans from satanic powers. The scriptures reveal that the demonic powers tremble before God’s mighty power (James 2:19). It is in Jesus’ name that believers have victory over the demonic realm. God’s Word declares:

“For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil.” (1 John 3:8b)

“Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; And deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.” (Hebrews 2:14-15)

“And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death.”

(Revelation 12:11)

However, if we are to truly be delivered from illicit drugs, alcoholism, sin and the demonic world, we need to repent and surrender our lives to Jesus Christ and agree to stop dancing with the devil. Kaplan wrote regarding his US Weekly interview with Williams, cited earlier, that “For years, the actor-man-child’s life was a welter of easy drugs, adoring audiences and accommodating women. Now he’s married and a father –and still willing to dance with the devil.”¹⁵ Sadly this ended up being a dance of death, which should be a lesson to us all.

Christians must guard their hearts from entertainers who are being used by dark forces to erode moral conviction and draw believers away from the light and love of Christ.

The terrible irony is that many of these comics, such as Robin Williams and Jonathan Winters, who are portrayed in their public persona to be happy and filled with laughs, are in fact the most tormented and joyless souls on earth. Jesus gave the solemn warning:

“For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?”
(Mark 8:36).

According to Robin Williams’ publicist, Williams had been struggling with “severe depression.” Famous comedian Chevy Chase said of Williams after his suicide “Robin and I were great friends, suffering from the same little-known disease: depression.”¹⁶

Jim Carrey, who has his own battles with severe depression, said when asked about Robin Williams’ death, “Comedians are often plagued by thoughts and beliefs that no one understands them.”¹⁷

Several famous comedians have been diagnosed with mental illness and suffered from severe depression. Just to name a few: John Cleese, Paul Merton, Jim Carrey, Stephen Fry, Jonathan Winters, Ruby Wax, Dave Chappelle, Robin Williams, Chevy Chase, Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton, Hugh Laurie, David Walliams, Maria Bamford, and Tony Hancock, who was considered the funniest comic actor of his time, ended up killing himself while filming a television series in Australia in 1968.

We cannot truly have peace until we have a relationship with the Prince of Peace (Isaiah 9:6). We cannot have true joy until we open our hearts to Him who has been crowned with joy above all others (Hebrews 1:9; 27).

Jesus – not drugs or alcohol – is the Savior of the world and the only One who can deliver us from the penalty of sin, hell, death and enslavement from satanic powers. Jesus declared:

“The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.” (John 10:10)

Jesus also declared:

“For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.

For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God” (John 3:16-21)

Depression can have many sources, but has only one ultimate remedy. True joy can only come from a relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ and the infilling of His Holy Spirit. The fruit of the Spirit is manifold and includes love and joy. Let us remember that there are a lot of hurting people out there like Robin Williams, who are filled with hopelessness and despair. May God make us sensitive to their needs and help us to show them His great love through our concern, willingness to help and sharing the gospel

Please pray for the celebrities/mediums in Hollywood and so many in the music industry, that they would repent and find deliverance from the demonic forces that are exploiting them to wickedly influence the masses, and that they would come to saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the King of kings and Lord of lords! Pray for those who clamor for their “entertainment,” and are adversely and incrementally affected. May the Lord guard each of our own hearts, as we seek discernment and seek to avoid the spiritual land mines that threaten our lives and those of our loved ones. May the Lord abundantly bless you as you seek His face and His glory!

THE 4TH MAN

Darl Dinger

Now there were three men who in their God believed
That were threatened with death
Who would not bow their knees

Nebuchadnezzar, He was King
Who built a statute on the plain
Commanded all of his subjects
To come and bow to him

These three men
Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego
They refused the King's command
They had nowhere to go

The King commanded
A troop of his elite
To take these three men and bind their hands and feet

Heat up the furnace seven times more
then take these three men and throw them through the door

Now these three men
In the furnace were thrown
But when the King looked
They were not alone

These three men
They were walking about
But there was a fourth man
But He did not come out

The King bade the three men
From the furnace come out
And when they appeared the people, begin to shout

The King was amazed
They were healthy and clean
Who was the fourth man
The one, that he had seen?

The moral of this poem
Jesus' words ring true
When you go through the fire
I will be there with you

Believe in my word
Yes, believe in my name
I'll be with you
When you go through the flame!

"I will never leave nor forsake you!"

THE KABBALAH BOOKLETS

Have you ever wondered what motivates the people who make up the World Government? What religion do they embrace? This is important because religion is a foundational building block behind every political movement. It is true of Communism, Nazism and Fascism. Do you know that all three of these violent movements have the same religion? Furthermore, it is the same religion that inspired these Satanic movements which is also the religion of the people in the World Government. In this series of booklets you will learn how the diabolical Kabbalah was started in the days of Moses, more than five thousand years ago by men who rebelled against God. This secret religion among the twelve tribes of Israel burned like a smoldering fire under the surface and it was King Solomon who fanned the fire some 900 years before Christ and made it into the refined system we see today. As we approach the coming of the Antichrist and the Mark of the Beast, it should be of utmost importance to know about the religion of this coming world dictator. This series will teach you the following:

- What do Kabbalists believe?
- Who is their god?
- What are the plans and goal of this god?
- How the Kabbalah is affecting many aspects of your life.

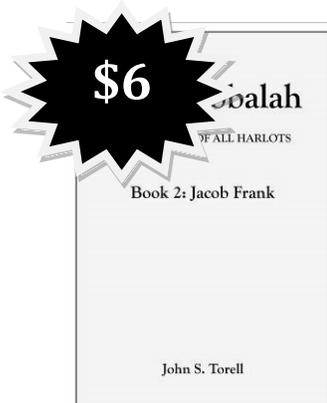

The knowledge you gain about this evil religion will help you resist the Mark of the Beast and the oppression that is going to come on this earth.

THE KABBALAH - Book 1: Sabbatai Sevi

Sabbatai Sevi proclaimed to be the messiah in the year 1666, but unlike Jesus, he lived an immoral life, and the Kabbalah teaches that through his sinful life and death through sickness, he opened the door for salvation for them that believe on him. Striving to live a sinful life is not the nature of God, but of the Devil, and the complete opposite of what the Bible teaches of Jesus, who was born of a virgin, lived a sinless life and died on the cross for our sins.

The messiah concept found in the Kabbalah is actually “Satan’s gospel” and the core belief of the people in charge of the coming World Government. If you don’t understand this concept, you will be deceived by the Antichrist system and might even be assured to take the Mark of the Beast by apostate church leaders and the media.

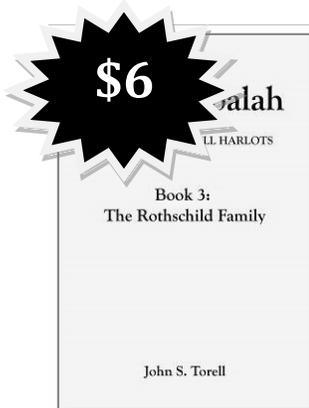

THE KABBALAH - Book 2: Jacob Frank

For thousands of years people believed the earth was flat and the center of the universe, and anyone who challenged these assumptions was arrested, tried and put to death by the Roman Catholic Church. So what happens today when someone makes an assertion that is considered anti-Semitic but can be proven otherwise? Few Gentiles know about a Jew named Jacob Frank in the 18th century who was deeply educated in the Kabbalah and believed he was the reincarnation of Sabbatai Sevi. He believed in nihilism and advocated overthrowing every national government, executing every king and eradicating every trace of Christianity. He strove to destroy God’s laws and lived in total sin.

While Frank was never able to put his revolutionary ideas into practice, his writings did become the foundation for the scourges of Communism, Nazism and Fascism and someday they will also be used by the Antichrist. The millions that were killed during the Second World War and the communist takeovers of Russia, China, Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos and Cuba are a direct result of Frank's writings. Their blood cries out for truth concerning this demonized man so that so that future generations can be warned about this hellish future.

THE KABBALAH - Book 3: The Rothschild Family

A successful revolution requires a lot of money, but when the goal is to subdue the world and put it under a dictatorship, entire financial systems must be taken over. The Kabbalistic leadership wants to take dominion of the earth and rule it with their messiah and they need to control the banking system to achieve this objective. The Fugger family was promoted in the 14th century but they did not protect their wealth. Jewish traders became very wealthy during the next two centuries as they operated in all nations and supplied warring armies but there was no centralized control that could be projected over the banking systems of different nations.

Meyer Amschel was selected to be the founding father of a global banking family. He was sly and deceitful and intensely loyal to the Jewish cause that is spelled out in the Talmud and the Kabbalah. The Kabbalistic leadership invested funds and coins which Amschel used to build a fairly strong banking house in Frankfurt and his five sons proved to be shrewder than their father. In less than 50 years the Rothschild family had penetrated the financial markets in Austria, Germany, France, England, Italy and Spain. This is the story of the Rothschild's, who through the Kabbalistic leadership were able to set the policies in these nations and achieve a monopoly that is unrivaled today.

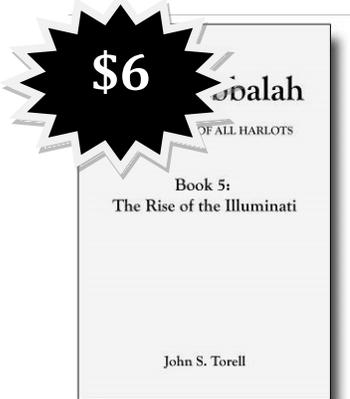

THE KABBALAH - Book 4: The Stealth Takeover of the United States

The Kabbalistic Jews learned through the Rothschild takeover of the European banking system to disguise themselves and find Gentiles who are willing to do their bidding. Another lesson they learned was that it is impossible for any nation or group of people to take control of the world through military power. The only way to succeed is to take control of the different nations' monetary systems and forge them into a global banking and trade system. Once this has been achieved, food is the ultimate weapon since no one can live without it.

The stealth takeover of the United States was done by Gentile businessmen, lawyers, elected political leaders, educators, Christian ministers and military commanders who were willing to carry out orders that included shooting on the American people to make them comply. This book takes you from 1828 until 1907 and shows the treason, sellouts and the rape of the American people that were carried out in such a remarkable way that no one could resist it and survive.

God was also carrying out a parallel program through D.L. Moody and R.A. Torrey, who were used to bring millions of people in the United States and England to Christ and hindered the ultimate goal of the Jewish world leaders of ushering in their new world order. Ironically, the same tactics employed more than a hundred years ago are still being foisted upon us today and the old adage is still true that those who don't know their history are doomed to repeat it.

THE KABBALAH - Book 5: The Rise of the Illuminati

Do the mythical Illuminati even exist and what are the intentions of this secretive group? Most people interested in prophecy and the Mark of the Beast will invariably come across a mysterious organization called the Illuminati. A great deal has been written about this secretive group but how much of it is truth? Who was Adam Weishaupt and why did he create the Illuminati? To answer that question we must examine his political viewpoints that were formulated upon writings of Plato, Jacob Frank and the Kabbalah. Utilizing this information along with historical facts that have been preserved in various libraries of France, England and the United States will present a picture of his mindset and intentions toward humanity.

While the Illuminati fomented revolution in France that resulted in widespread death and destruction, God simultaneously worked upon John Wesley, George Whitefield and Jonathan Edwards, who became lightning rods for a revival that would touch the entire world. Weishaupt had similar plans for revolution in England and the American colonies, but these three men were instrumental in thwarting this effort and you will be inspired to learn about God's intervention in human affairs.

THE KABBALAH - Book 6: The Illuminati Writers and the Revolutions

The Al-Qaida terror network is nothing compared to the terrorists who sought to change the world in 1848! The last ten years have been filled with news of the Al-Qaida terrorist network and its organization of radical killers, but did you know that there was an even more sinister terror network operating in Europe 180 years ago? They worshiped Satan with all their might and arose in coordinated revolutions by the hundreds of thousands in 1848 to overthrow governments and cause a world upheaval. They were trained in military skills and revolutionary ideas by men whose names have been mostly forgotten by history, but the words of these writers still remain and continue to work in the hearts of the impressionable students at universities and seminaries.

The Illuminati writers are long dead but they trained another generation to carry on their evil intent for a world government and that cycle has continued to perpetuate itself. In fact, their message can be found at the core of every dictatorship in existence today. This narrative of the Illuminati writers shows Satan's intent to enslave all nations of the earth through revolution and form a world government which will usher in the kingdom of the Antichrist. The disciples of these writers have set their sights on destroying the United States, and unless God's people wake up, America will go down in history as the last of the great nations who forsook the Lord. If that seems improbable, you need only look at what happened in the past to see what lies in the future.

Christian Dynamics Course 1

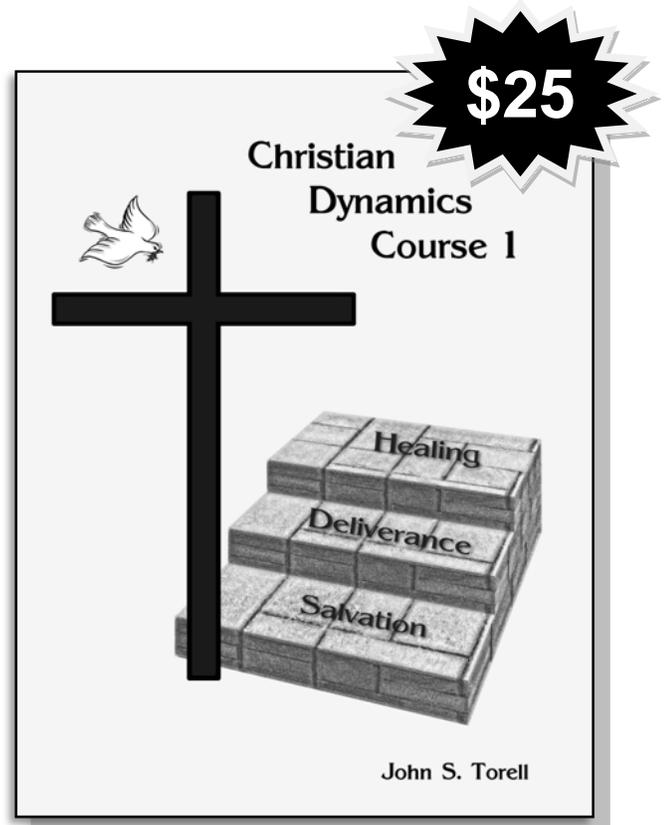

Salvation, Deliverance & Healing

"My husband has locked himself in the bathroom and is going to kill himself!" These were the frantic words spoken by a friend named Glenda as I was ready to enter a Southern Baptist Church on a Sunday morning in 1970 in San Rafael, California. My heart almost stopped as I heard these words because Jim was the worship leader in the church and a staff member at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary where I was a first year student. They were really good friends to my wife and I and now he was going to kill himself? As a young Christian, I knew very little about spiritual warfare and wondered how I could save my friend.

I rushed over to Jim and Glenda's apartment and found to my great joy that Jim was still alive but very distraught. I told him about a book I had just read about demons and asked him to come with me to my apartment to get the book so he could read it and get some help. Jim grabbed me in a bear hug when we arrived at my apartment and said he was not leaving until I had cast out the demons in him. I was shocked since all I had ever done was read a book about it. As we knelt in front of a couch and called upon the Lord, I was again stunned when Jim lifted the couch in the air and foam came out of his mouth. There was no time for fear so I began to command the demons to leave. Jim collapsed on the floor after a fierce battle and I thought he was dead. I laid my hands on him and as I prayed the Holy Spirit fell on him and he got up and screamed, "Praise God, I am free!"

This is how I was thrust into a deliverance ministry. I purchased every book I could find on demons and the Baptism of the Holy Spirit. As my wife and I prayed for people, our skill level increased and so did the anointing from God. During our travels we ran into Satan worshippers, learned about the world government and for the next 40 years I have recorded what I learned. This practical handbook is the culmination of my life's work and will give you a solid understanding of salvation, how to pray for the Baptism of the Holy Spirit and how to have a close relationship with God the Father and His Son, Jesus. You will also learn the blessings God has for those who obey His Word and the curses that come upon those who disobey it. You will learn the difference between demon possession and oppression and how to handle demonic problems. In short, this book is the manual that I never had.

Thousands of people over the years have had their lives changed as they moved from defeat to victory and the same can happen for you!

THE BIRTH OF CHRISTIANITY

John S. Torell

The average Christian is not familiar with their Bible and possesses almost no historical knowledge regarding the birth of Christianity because most churches in the United States emphasize contemporary worship, a short sermonette and lots of social activities. This series of messages will educate you about the struggle that the early church faced in breaking away from Judaism.

The Talmud was so deeply ingrained in the apostles that they ignored the words of Jesus to evangelize the whole world because Gentiles were considered unclean and likened to animals. It would take some time before the church leaders finally lined up with their departed Master and understood that the Second Covenant is for the Jews and Gentiles alike.

But this didn't put a stop to misunderstandings about circumcision and the parts of God's law which were applicable to the Gentiles who were ignorant of the Old Testament and didn't have access to the scrolls in the synagogues.

Eventually it became necessary to hold a special conference in Jerusalem and straighten out what should be done with the Christian Gentiles. Their ruling was man's attempt to solve a spiritual problem in the flesh and it would be years later before the doctrine of the Christian church was finally written that corrected the errors from this conference and established the Christian faith.

THE STRECKER MEMORANDUM

Dr. Robert Strecker refutes, with documented evidence, virtually everything the so-called experts and Government reports have told you about AIDS. He asserts in no uncertain terms that AIDS is a man-made disease, AIDS is not a homosexual disease, AIDS is not a venereal disease, AIDS can be carried by mosquitoes, and there can never be a vaccine. Dr. Strecker shows how AIDS was predicted, requested, created, deployed and works very well!

Although decades have passed and untold billions have been spent in research, cancer is still with us, the second major cause of death in America. The most dreaded fear that all oncologists, virologists and immunologists live with is that someday cancer in one form or another will become a contagious disease, transferable from one person to another.

AIDS has now made that fear a reality, and if you think you're safe because you're not gay or promiscuous, or because you're not sexually active, then you had better watch this video very carefully until you fully understand what Dr. Strecker is telling you as he takes you step by step and shows you how this dreaded disease was actually man-made. Condoms can't prevent it and there won't ever be a vaccine.

Dr. Robert B. Strecker practices internal medicine and gastroenterology; he is a trained pathologist and holds a Ph.D. in pharmacology. Dr. Strecker and his brother, Ted, were preparing a proposal for a health maintenance organization (HMO) for the Security Pacific Bank of California. They needed to know the long-term financial effects of insuring the treatment of AIDS patients. In as much as this information was not readily available in 1983, both brothers began researching the medical literature to learn what they could about this relatively new disease. The information they uncovered was so startling and hard to believe that it would dramatically alter both their lives and lead them on a five-year quest culminating with the creation of The Strecker Memorandum video.

THE DELIBERATE DUMBING DOWN OF AMERICA

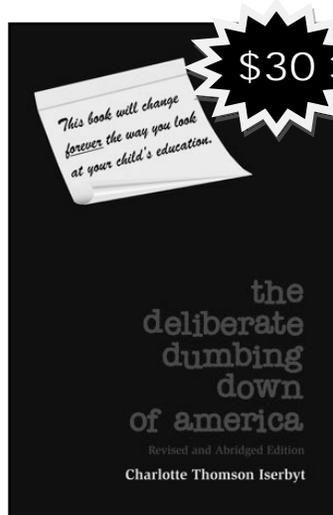

Charlotte Thomson Iserbyt

The Deliberate Dumbing Down of America reveals changes that were gradually brought into the American public education system work to eliminate the influences of a child's parents (religion, morals, national patriotism), and mold the child into a member of the proletariat in preparation for a socialist-collectivist world of the future.

If you think there's nothing wrong with America's educational system, you will probably dismiss this book as the rantings of a right-wing conspiracy theorist who sees danger at every turn. If you're a back-to-basics reformer, you won't like it either, because Iserbyt finds fault with virtually every program being used in America's schools. That includes character education, core curriculum, and Direct Instruction, all supported by conservatives as ways to bring morality and rigor back into the classroom.

Charlotte Iserbyt presents a clear chronology of educational restructuring and brings compelling evidence that school reform, supported by all political stripes, to be a totalitarian plan using Skinnerian behavior modification and other equally manipulative psychological techniques to subjugate future generations in a state of ignorant bliss.

This is a straight shooting book that tells the whole truth and should be mandatory reading for elected officials, who should give serious consideration to her proposals in order to turn the situation around. If you have already made the decision to home school, this book will reinforce the idea that you have made the correct decision for your children. It can also be a psychological lifeboat for teachers who feel trapped in the educational system.
